

WALK FROM COAST TO COAST IN 90 DAYS

Albert Leonard And Jack Gilroy Walking From Portland Me. To Portland Ore. Visit
The Herald

Albert Leonard and Jack Gilroy, Herald this morning.
Both pedestrians are fine-looking two husky lads who are walking from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore. chaps and Leonard, who is 23, is a student at the New York College of Dentistry, while Gilroy, who is 23, is contemplating taking up a course of study at the same institution.

This contemplated walk from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore., is not the first long walk for Gilroy and Leonard as the young men walked from Atlantic City to Philadelphia and return, a distance of 116 miles, in three days and 12 hours on a wager that they could not complete the trip in less than four days.

The young men will walk every day of the week and hope to earn enough money by selling photographs to purchase food. They cannot beg borrow or steal and they will be largely depended upon donations by generous people along the route.
They are to walk the trip in 90 days in order to win.

McPheters Pitches a No Hit Game—
Craig Deserving of Better Support.

The Y. M. C. A. defeated the Ellery Twist Drill at the playgrounds Wednesday evening by a score of 5 to 0. McPheters, who pitched for the winners did not allow a hit and only handed out one pass. Craig, who was the slab ar-

Brackett drew a pass but was foreced at second on Weyand's grounder to White.
White selected for his third strike a wild pitch and went to first, but was immediately thrown out going to second. Barrett layed one down that McPheters got to first in time and Chaisson walked but Driscoll had the final out with a fly to Esterbrook.

In the third the Y. M. C. A. got two runs. Bill Brackett was thrown out at first by Bruce, and McPheters singled stole second and went to third on Craig's error, but he was caught going home on R.
Brackett's grounder to Craig. Mattison drove out a three base hit, scoring R. Brackett. Howard drew a base on balls and Mattison stole home. Esterbrook retired the side on a grounder to Craig. But three men were up to the Ellery. Hersey and Craig struck out and Bruce was thrown out at first by W. Brackett.

Score Y. M. C. A. 3, Ellery 0.
There was nothing doing on either side in the fourth, W. Leary struck out and C. Brackett went to first on

The Y. M. C. A. scored in the first inning. Bill Brackett was thrown out by Bruce at first. Mc-Pheters got a pass and P. Brackett singled, and a wild heave by Chaisson allowed McPheters to score and P. Brackett to go to second. Mattison sent a rounder to Craig and he caught R. Brackett at third and Howard ended the inning by strik-

BISHOP GUERTIN BUYS VALUABLE PROPERTY

Bishop George A. Guertin of the Diocese of Manchester has purchased two estates in that city.

The two estates will give 22,000 square feet. It is understood that Bishop Guertin also has in contemplation the purchase of the estate south, owned by Mrs. Puyson French and with this the new parish of Sacred Heart of Jesus, of which Rev.
F. P. X. Leclair is pastor, will have ample room for a church, school and parish house.

OSGOOD LODGE'S ANNUAL OUTING

The annual outing of the Osgood Lodge, No. 5, I. O. O. F. was held on Wednesday at Rand's Grove at Jenness Beach and it was one of the most successful outings held by this bustling organization. There were about 150 present and this included the members and visiting brethren and they had one fine time, from the time they arrived at the grove until they left at seven o'clock for home.

The trip down was made on special electric cars at 10 o'clock and upon arrival at the grounds there was something to take up everybody's attention. The Veteran Fife and Drum Corps were present and furnished music during the day.

At noon a dinner of chowder with all of the fixings was served and following this the sports were taken up under the direction of Charles H. Kehoe the secretary of the committee, and Charlie keeps things going.

The first was a base ball game between the married and single men and the single men had a little on the other bunch and they won by a score of 7 to 5. A prize was offered for the first home run and it went to William F. Tilton and he was awarded a pair of slippers. John G. Tobey got two near home runs but they were not allowed.

The field sports were:—

100 yard dash—won by William second, H. Eckhart, a pair of slippers and George Cox, a picture.

Throwing the base ball—won by O. D. Ham prize, an order for goods, second, H. Eckhart, a pair of slippers.

Three legged race—won by Tilton and Shaw prize, sleeve elastic; second, Rouillon and Colbath, cigars.

Peanut race—won by J. C. prize, jackknife; second, W. F. Tilton, looking glass.

Hop-step-jump—won by T. C. Wells, prize, $1.00 box of chocolates; second P. H. Mize, cigars.

Fat men's race—won by P. H. Mize, prize a year's subscription to a magazine, second, John G. Tobey, two pairs socks.

Standing broad jump—won by T. C. Wells, prize, an inkstand; second, Dezire Bruneau, box chocolates.

150 yard dash—won by William Lester, prize, a safety razor; second, D. Bruneau fancy collar box.

At six o'clock a lobster supper was served and an hour later line was formed and marched for the car which arrived home at eight o'clock everybody well pleased with the day's outing.

The committee who had charge of all the arrangements were: William F. Tilton chairman, Charles H. Kehoe secretary, Vernon Johnson, James Mabey W. H. Palfrey, J. C. Shaw, H. W. Donnell, W. H. Appleton, C. B. Allen, R. C. Moutin, E. A. Tupker, J. H. Morrill, J. M. Varrell and O. D. Ham.

Fashionable society has not yet got over the shock caused by the elopement of Julia Estelle French, a Newport belle, and her husband, Jack Geraghty, a chauffeur. The bride is nineteen and an heiress, while Geraghty is twenty-three. Relatives of the girl threaten all sorts of dire steps to part the young couple, but both Geraghty and his bride are firm in their declaration that they shall not be separated. The man on the box is Geraghty's father, who is a "cabby" at Newport.

ARRESTED AT SKOWHEGAN FOR LARCENY

Dr. A. B. Borden Charged With Larceny of Goods From Hislop's Stable.

Dr. A. B. Borden of Skowhegan, Me., was arrested in that town on Wednesday on a warrant sworn out by County Solicitor E. L. Guptill of this city, charging him with the larceny of goods from the stable of Albert Hislop on Vaughan street.

Saturday Dr. Borden came to this city and purchased an automobile from Mr. Hislop and Sunday morning he started early in the morning for his home. After he left goods, such as a steamer rug, a duster, a cap, etc. were missing, in fact there was something gone from four of the machines.

Mr. Hislop suspected Dr. Borden and he notified County Solicitor Guptill and both started after Dr. Borden in one of Mr. Hislop's cars and they overtook him in Lewiston, Me., and found the missing goods in his car. They took them away and upon his promising to come to this city on Tuesday and stand trial, he was allowed to go, that is he city and purchased an automobile from Mr. Hislop and Sunday morning he started early in the morning for his home. PARAGON PARK AND PALM GARDEN

Free Circus Acts, Fireworks and Cabaret Show Attract Thousands Daily

Paragon Park and its famous Palm Garden continue at the high water mark of popular approval, and the average daily attendance goes on increasing as the season advances. The new idea of giving a "cabaret show" in the Palm Garden from 9 to 11 o'clock each evening is attracting unprecedented crowds late in the evening, and while visitors leave the park at an early hour the throngs now are as great between 10 and 11 as at any hour of the day. It is indeed a novelty to be able to sit down at tables in the brilliantly illuminated ocean-breeze-swept-cage and while enjoying light refreshments be entertained with all the luxury and festivity of a metropolitan vaudeville entertainment. The European idea of having all the entertainers give their acts as a surprise from the tables is in vogue, and now that patrons have become accustomed to it, it frequently happens that some visitor unexpectedly contributes a song or a monologue of his own.

The band concerts, orchestra program, grand opera trio, Mme. Wilhemina Calvery, Marie Uscavarsky, and others continue to entertain the Palm Garden patrons both afternoon and evening as well as during the Cabaret Show.

But in the midst of all this excitement about the Palm Garden and its multitudinous attractions one should not lose sight of the fact that these do not by any means constitute all of the attractions at Paragon. There are the ever popular grand displays of fireworks every Wednesday and Saturday night, the Italian Illumination Sunday nights the free circus acts on the Lagoon every afternoon and evening, including Will Hill and his illuminated bicycle on a single slender wire stretched high over the full length of the Lagoon, Gilbert the world's famous high diver, Mlle. Morisini and her trained ponies and Russian wolf hounds, and the wonderful sea lions from Catalina Island.

Great preparations are in progress for a grand carnival on Labor Day.

BASE BALL

Captain Bill Brackett of the Y. M. C. A., will start on Saturday forenoon for Fremont, where he will play with a team of that town for the next eight days, so that the Y. M. C. A. will miss this valuable player in their games next week.

Craig who pitched for the Bitter last evening was deserving of a better fate. He pitched a good game and with good support would have made any team travel.

The game this evening will be the Knights of Columbus and the Morley Bullion.

TO PATROL BORDER AGAIN

Threatening Situation in Lower California Causes U.S. Troops Work

Washington, Aug. 16—A patrol of the California frontier by United States troops, abolished only a short time ago, was ordered re-established today by the war department, because of a threatening situation just south of the border in Lower California, Mex. A company of coast artillery at San Diego, Cal., was instructed to take the field patrol duty from San Diego to Yum Ariz.

Mexican rurals are now proceeding to Tin Juana, over American territory with the consent of the United States government, to suppress the troubles in Lower California. It is feared by the state department that when the Mexican soldiers clear out the disturbers, some of the latter may seek refuge in the United States, and commit depredations on American soil. For this reason Secretary Knox appealed to the war department to send to the border a patrol adequate to protect American interests.

BENEFIT BASE BALL GAME

A game of baseball that should attract every fan will be played at the play grounds on Saturday afternoon for the benefit of William Fields and Water Fisher, who were injured in the game at Kittery last Saturday. The teams will be an All-Star team from the Sunset League of this city and the Riversides of Kittery and it promises to be somewhat of a ball game. Manager Shaw of the Consolidation Coal grounds for Saturday, but when he learned that the benefit game was being arranged he promptly notified Jere Lyons and W. F. Woods the promoters, that they would cancel their game so they could have the ground and would assist in every way they could to make it a big benefit.

LAUGHTER.

How It Has Been Defined and Some Folks Who Never Tried It.

What is laughter? An American humorist has called it "an undignified widening of the human mouth, accompanied by a noise resembling a cough in the effort to avoid swallowing a chestnut."

"Laughter," says Professor Sir Charles Bell, "is a convulsive action of the diaphragm. In this state the person draws a full breath and throws it out in interrupted short and audible exclamations. This convulsion of the diaphragm is the principal part of the physical manifestation of laughter."

"But there are several accessories, especially the sharp vocal utterance arising from the violent tension of the larynx and the expression of the features, this being a more intense form of the smile. In extreme cases the eyes are moistened by the effusion from the lacrimal glands."

There are some people who cannot laugh, who are wholly unable to enjoy either the physical or the mental luxury of a laugh. Thus it was said of William III. that he was utterly at a loss to understand what could be got out of laughter except loss of dignity. There are many persons in history who have been, according to common report, incapable of laughter. Queen Mary I., John Knox, Robespierre and Maitre are examples. The Iron Duke himself rarely, if ever, went beyond a grunt.—Strand Magazine.

STRENUOUS MUSIC.

A Story They Tell of Strauss' Ability as a Conductor.

"The late Thomas Wentworth Higginson," said a Harvard instructor, "loved music, but not the extremely technical music of Richard Strauss. Ravel and others of that type."

"Concerning Strauss and his banging, crashing music, Colonel Higginson used to tell a story."

"He said that Strauss went one summer on a hunting trip in the mountains. It chanced that on a certain afternoon a terrific thunderstorm descended on the hunting party. Amid convulsing thunder and blinding lightning, amid deluges of rain whipped by a roaring wind, the huntsmen all sought shelter."

"Where, though, was Strauss? Three friends set out in alarm to look for him. They feared that in the wild chaos of the storm he had fallen down a precipice. After a long while they found him. They found him doing—what do you suppose?"

"Strauss stood unharmed on the summit of a lofty crag. The lightning played about him in vivid violet flashes; the rain deluged him; the thunder rolled and rumbled around him; the roaring wind whipped his countenance about his head, and the music, a raged in his hand, was busily engaged on his high organ in conducting the thunderstorm!"—Washington Star.

Wanted—Two Good Murderers. Some curious letters passed between Garriek and a man named Stone. The latter was employed to get recruits for the low parts of the drama, and one night he wrote to Garriek, "Sir, the bishop of Winchester is getting drunk at the Bear and swears he will not play tonight."

At first sight this seems peculiar conduct for a bishop, but it should be explained that the communication only refers to the man engaged to take that character in the play of "Henry VIII." On another occasion Garriek wrote to Stone: "If you can get me two good murderers I will pay you handsomely, particularly the spouting fellow who keeps the apple still on Tower hill. Pick me up an alderman or two for 'Richard' if you can, and I have no objection to treat with you for a comedy mayor."

All Broke. "Is your father in?" the man with the valise asked. "No," the boy at the front door said, "he's away somewhere breakin' a year for 'em."

"Is your mother in?" "No," she's out in the barn breakin' an old hen of settlin'."

"You have an older brother, haven't you?" "Yes, but he's layin' down upstairs tryin' to break up a cold."

"Well, can't I sell you some patent clothes?" "No, I'm broke."—Chicago Tribune.

Strangely Interesting. "What a strangely interesting face your friend the poet has," gurgled the maiden of forty. "It seems to possess all the elements of happiness and sorrow, each struggling for supremacy."

"Yes, he looks to me like a man who was married and didn't know it," growled the cynical bachelor.—Philadelphia Record.

Agreed. "I'd give anything almost if I had Mrs. Toner's savoir faire."

"I think I'm much more patriotic to own an American-made car."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Like unto It. "Love thy neighbor as thyself" and also stop talking about yourself now and then and say a few kind words about him."—Norfolk Ledger Dispatch.

Natural Cause. "The man who makes such an allegation against me is a reptile."

"Well, naturally he is an alligator."—Baltimore American.

Ignorance is the primary source of all misery and vice.—Oswald.

PROMPTING AN AUDIENCE.

English Actors Give a Signal When It's Time to Laugh.

"Nothing illustrates the difference between English and American wit more, probably, than the manner in which playwrights write their lines," said Rupert Hughes. "There are few people who realize the intricacy of the science of writing a 'laugh'—that is, a line capable of producing a laugh from an audience."

"A man may write one of the funniest lines ever given to the American stage and see it ignored by an audience because of some act on the part of the producing company or one member of that company. I have seen the wittiest remarks wasted because of the move of a hand or of the head of the comedian or actor who enunciated it. Then, again, the laugh is taken out of a line by the moving of some person in the stage setting or by the moving of some part of the stage setting itself. It is funny how the slightest move on the part of an actor, after reciting certain lines, absolutely eliminates the wit from what he has just spoken, so far as the audience is concerned."

"This is so of American audiences, but not so of the English theater-going public. They will not laugh unless the witicism is finished by a nod of the head or a certain movement of the body."

"It is on this account that certain comedies, great successes in this country, are absolute failures in Great Britain," he continues. "Something must be done when a 'laugh line' is spoken on the English stage to give the audience an inkling that the witicism has been completed. Then you get your laugh."

"Not so, on the contrary, with Americans. I remember of hearing of an incident involving one of Olga Nethersole's first appearances in this country. Several times during the performance the celebrated actress walked to the sides and exclaimed to the stage manager: 'What's the matter? Are they going to hiss me off? Why, they applaud before they hear the end of the lines.' In each instance she was told that the audience was quicker than the audiences to which she had been accustomed to playing. She was told the Americans grasped the meaning and the wit of her lines when she had spoken only half of them. The actress, although she received all kinds of applause during the performance, seemed disheartened."—Washington Post.

A Wig and a Tragedy. It is just as well that our enthusiasm for oriental curiosities should be tempered by discretion. Eastern antiquities may be picturesque and with all the charm of mystery, but at the same time they may have a history that, if known, would consign them to the store without benefit of clergy. Her is a story bearing upon the point and with its obvious moral. A young man extremely pretty girl went to a fancy dress ball in Chinese costume. The triumph of her makeup was a real oriental wig, and she wore it proudly. Some time after a strange mark appeared on her forehead, and this was treated as a trifling skin affection. But it refused to disappear; in fact, it grew larger, and then the specialist was consulted. It was leprosy.—Argonaut.

Color of Lightning. The color of lightning is almost entirely due to the nature of the substance in its track that is made incandescent. The blue, red, purple or silver tints, which are ordinarily much more brilliantly marked in tropical countries than they ever are in this latitude, are due to the same circumstance as that which produces the color designedly communicated to the light of different kinds of fireworks. Each different foreign ingredient that floats in the air has its own proper hue, which it can communicate to the lightning. The vapor of iron has one kind of shine and the vapor of sulphur another.—Harper's Weekly.

Stolen Eloquence. "It is better to be silent," said a prominent clergyman, "than to be eloquent by unfair means." "There was once a divine whose good wife said to him: 'James, dear, the Rev. Dr. Tenbly has made over $200 by the publication of a volume of sermons. You preach much better than Dr. Tenbly, dear. Why not print a few of your sermons?' 'My love,' the man whispered hoarsely, 'they were all printed long ago.'"

Jack Flynn of Pirates, Who May Wear Washington Uniform

First Baseman Jack Flynn, who for the past two years has been a member of the Pittsburgh National League team, may be a member of the Washington Senators in another week. Flynn has been a member of the Pittsburgh club since the spring of 1910. At that time he was purchased by that club from St. Paul. He was played in the early games, but because of illness was forced to quit the game. He came back later and finished the season with a batting average of .275 for ninety three games. Pittsburgh went out last winter and purchased First Baseman Hunter of the Kansas City for a sum said to be in the neighborhood of $5000, but Hunter failed to make good. Notwithstanding this fact, Flynn was not given a chance, and a new man from the minor leagues named Keene was secured to fill the position.

THE ANTISEPTIC BABY.

We can sterilize his bottle, we can boil his little mug; we can make his flannel bandages and disinfect the rug that envelops him when he partakes of medicated air. But there's one impossibility that leaves us in despair—And a not unjustifiable alarm, you'll most certainly allow—To wit, we fear 'twould never do to sterilize the cow.

Thus, although we strive to conquer every septic circumstance, yet we greatly fear a ghastly alimentary mischance; for albeit we bake and boil his things and scrub and soak and scour him, as if in his anatomy forever cleaning house—The recklessness with which he sucks his vagrant, tiny thumb Imperils much his precious antiseptic little tum.

We are careful of his hours, we are thoughtful of his toys; we are mindful of his sorrows and judicious of his joys; we are prayerfully considerate of needful discipline, of my little "Mother's Handbook" and the precepts writ therein. And we strive to render sterile all designed for mouth or turn. But one frightful danger menaces—we cannot boil his thumb. —Tit-Bits.

LIQUID PORES.

An Entertaining Experiment With Alcohol and Water.

It is not easy to imagine liquids as having pores, though this seems to be the case as shown by certain familiar experiments. When a certain amount of powdered sugar is slowly poured into warm water, the water will dissolve the sugar and appear to absorb it without increasing its volume. Similarly, when alcohol is poured into water the resulting volume is less than the sum of the two volumes.

For instance, if fifty parts of water and fifty parts of alcohol be mixed together they will make only ninety-four parts. Apparently one of the liquids has entered into the "pores" of the other. This experiment, as commonly performed in laboratories, consists in putting measured quantities of the two liquids together, but the effect would be far more striking were it possible for students to see one of the liquids actually "soaking" into the other. This can be done in the following way:

Take two glasses, one filled to the brim with water and the other with alcohol. In order to show the effect to better advantage, color the alcohol with red ink. The glasses should not be over full—that is, the surface of the liquid should not bulge above the rim of the glass. When everything is ready, place a sheet of paper over the glass full of alcohol, and with a on two paper to keep it down on the rim of the glass invert the tumbler, and the liquid will remain in the glass, owing to the air pressure on the paper. Now place the inverted tumbler over the glass full of water and carefully draw out the paper. This can be done without spilling a drop of alcohol, and yet as soon as the paper is removed the alcohol will commence to drop. Owing to the fact that it is colored it is possible to see the alcohol actually "soaking" into the water, while tiny air bubbles that were formerly contained in the "pores" of the water rise slowly to the top of the tumbler. This will continue for some little time until a considerable air space forms in the top of the tumbler.

ASLEEP AT HIS DESK.

Lincoln Was Worn Out, but Hadn't Forgotten His Caller. One day a very energetic lady called on me to take her to the president and aid her to get a private soldier pardoned who had been sentenced to death for desertion and was to be shot the very next morning. It was late in the afternoon when we got there, and the cabinet was still in session. I sent my name in to Mr. Lincoln, and he came out, evidently in profound thought and full of some great subject. I stated the object of our call and, leaving the lady in one of the ante-chambers, returned to the senate, which had not yet adjourned.

The case made a deep impression on me, but I forgot it in the excitement of the debate and the work of my office until perhaps near 10 o'clock that night, when my female friend came rushing into the room, radiant with delight, the pardon in her hand.

"I have been up there ever since," she said. "The cabinet adjourned, and I sat waiting for the president to come out and tell me the fate of my poor soldier, whose case I placed in his hands after you left. But I waited in vain—there was no Mr. Lincoln. So I thought I would go up to the door of his cabinet room and knock. I did so, and as there was no answer I opened it and passed in, and there was the worn president asleep with his head on the table resting on his arm and my boy's pardon signed by his side. I quietly walked him, blessed him for his good deed and came here to tell you the glorious news."—John W. Forney in "Anecdotes of Public Men."

Early Railroad Fliers.

When the first passenger railroad ever built was opened in England in 1825 the train traveled from one end of the line to the other, a distance of twelve miles, in two hours. And Wood, one of the best known writers on the subject of railroads at that day, wrote as follows:

"Nothing can do more harm to the adoption of railways (than the promulgation of such nonsense as that we shall see locomotives traveling at the rate of twelve miles an hour."

Today, with locomotives traveling at the rate of seventy-five miles an hour, one can look at Wood's warning with a feeling of amusement. In 1829 a locomotive was introduced in this country, and in the following year Peter Cooper experimented with a locomotive on the B. and O. railroad. The flues of the boiler were made from gun barrels. The boiler was about the size of a flour barrel. Cooper related with considerable satisfaction how on the trial trip of this engine he passed a gray horse attached to a wagon.—New York World.

Big Poker Stakes.

Many stories of big poker games among the western cattlemen in the early days have been told, but this story of the game with probably the greatest stakes is really true. Two well known cattlemen of southwestern Kansas, one of whom is now a prominent business man in Kansas City, started to move their herds to the pastures of Wyoming. Each herd contained more than a thousand head of cattle. When they came to the crossing of the Arkansas river near Coolidge they found a flood on. They were unable to cross for two or three days. To while away the time the two men engaged in a poker game. When the flood finally subsided so that the cattle could proceed one of the cattlemen said to his son, who was helping to drive, "Just turn my herd over to our neighbor and we will go back home." He had bet and lost not only all the money he had, but all of the herd of cattle.—Kansas City Journal.

Moving Troops by Rail.

"Let us suppose it became necessary to send the entire national guard of New York out of the state, how long would it take the railroads to handle them?" was asked a railroad official in New York.

"Twenty-four hours, easy," was the instant reply. "This is under war conditions, remember, which means that everything gives way to the movement of troops and their equipment. The railroads of America can handle men and war material of all kinds, including everything from horses and men to cannon and rations, much faster than they can be assembled and delivered to us. In fact, under war conditions the railroads are prepared to do their part quicker and better, with more certainty and better speed, than any other part of the machinery, commercial or military, in America."—Railroad Man's Magazine.

Black Fridays.

In England the term Black Friday was first applied to Dec. 6, 1745, the day on which news reached London that the pretender, Charles Edward, had reached Derby. Again on May 11, 1808, when the failure of a large English discounting institution brought on a most disastrous panic, the day was called Black Friday. On the day of the suspension of the Bank of England raised the rate of discount 9 per cent. Wild speculation in gold in New York and other cities culminated in a monetary crash on Sept. 10, 1875, that swept thousands of firms and individuals into financial ruin and caused a commercial depression that extended into the eighties of the last century; hence the origin of the term Black Friday in the United States.

To Make Red Ink.

Red ink is easily made by amateurs who follow this recipe: Get a one ounce bottle and see that it is perfectly clean and dry. Place in it one teaspoonful of aqua ammonia, gum arabic the size of two peas and add six grains of carmine. Fill up the bottle with clear soft water, and after standing a little while it will be fit for use.

The Scrap Book

Rather Liked the Affront.

Edward B. Clark, the Washington correspondent, was the agent for a Chicago paper at Pine Ridge at the time of the Indian uprising there. After the difficulty had been composed Clark got a telegram from his paper asking him to get an interview with Young Man Afraid of His Horses, a chief who had taken part. Clark took an interpreter and went to the chief's tepee. The chief, still in his war paint, received him in the tepee and asked Clark to eat. Clark ate. Then, wanting to do the right thing and not knowing whether it was proper to tip a big Indian chief, Clark dropped three silver dollars into the hand of the chief's wife, and for fear the paint streaked but dignified warrior might consider this an affront he had his interpreter say to the chief, "In my country a compliment to a man's wife is thought a double compliment." The interpreter repeated this sentiment to Young Man Afraid of His Horses. That dignity granted, rose left the tepee and came back with four more wives.—Saturday Evening Post.

A Trifling Incident.

An Irishman went into a barber shop, and the unsteady gait with which he approached the chair showed that he had been imbibing of the produce of the still. He wanted his hair cut, and while the barber was getting him ready went off into a sleep. His head kept bobbing from one side to the other, and at length the barber in making a snip cut off the lower part of his ear. The barber gasped, then jumped about the THE BARBER GASPED, and howled, and a crowd of neighbors rushed in. Finally the demonstration became so great that it began to attract the attention of the man in the chair, and he opened one eye and said, "Wh-wh-ah's the matter wid yez?"

"Good Lord," said the barber. "I've cut off the whole lower part of your ear."

"Have ye? Ah, thin, go on wid yer business. It was too long anyhow."

An Oversight.

"I trust you slept comfortably and had everything you needed," said Sandy Macpherson's hostess one cold morning last winter. "Aye, veyel enough," replied her guest, a venerable Scot, "but I dinna see the gold of yon bottle in the bed."

"Why, wasn't the water hot?" the hostess asked in surprise. "Verra hot," responded Macpherson, "but ye forgot to put anything in it."

Expecting Too Much.

"A rather shabby old chap who was traveling off the beaten paths struck a somewhat shabby hotel, which was principally used by workmen from a nearby construction camp. He paid a dollar in advance for room and breakfast, the clerk remarking caustically that 'a suit case isn't a guarantee that the bill will be paid, especially when a guy has a room on the second floor.' And just before midnight the indignant Mr. Smith piled down into the hotel office, almost dressed."

"What's the matter?" asked the sleepy clerk, shifting his pipe to the other corner. "Anything wrong?" "Wrong!" gasped Mr. Smith, trembling. "Wrong! Confound your old dump, anyhow! I saw a pair of rats as big as hedgehogs fighting in the middle of my room."

"Huh," said the clerk, closing his eyes and preparing to return to sleep. "What do you want for a dollar—a bullfight?"—Herbert Corey in Cincinnati Times-Star.

Out of His Element.

Bob Ingersoll was once ridiculing a sermon he had heard in Italy on the miracle of St. Anthony preaching to the fishes, which, the better to listen to the pious discourse, held their heads out of the water.

"I can credit the miracle," said Bishop Potter, "if you were at church." "I certainly was there," replied the famous infidel. "Then there was at least one fish out of water."

LOVE NOT ENOUGH.

Love cannot make a mother a good mother. It will make her well intentioned, but it will not give her the knowledge of what her children need. It will not give her the ability to train her children as they should be trained. The thing we need is to arouse the mothers and induce them to study their children, to know them and not to bring them up simply by chance. If we can only arouse the mothers to see that they can prevent crime, that in their hands lies the future of the world, we will accomplish the greatest thing attainable. Mothers must be taught that as they sow so shall their children reap. The mother can inoculate in her children lessons that never will be eradicated. She can make them good or she can make them bad.—Mrs. Frederick Schaff.

SHOULD GO SLOW

The general business condition throughout the country and in the money market indicates a feeling of unrest and it will be well to go slow at Washington. The disgraceful attempt of the democrats to play politics on all matters at the expense of American labor is fast becoming known. The public has discovered that all the so-called investigations are being conducted purely for political effect and the country at large is being made to suffer. The people are with President Taft and when the democrats awaken they will find that they haven't fooled the people.

American labor is being well paid and with the elimination of politics at Washington things would boom all along the line. When will our public men place the country above politics?

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

Man's Conquest of Space.

It takes a fast express train eight hours to make the 28-mile run from St. Louis to Chicago which Atwood accomplished in five hours and forty-two minutes of actual flying time. His feat adds a new glory to long-distance aviation and lends the keenest expectation to the rest of his air itinerary to the Atlantic.

All eyes will be upon the daring birdman as he wings his way by Lake Erie and over the cities of the Empire state to the seaboard, and something of the zest of the watcher of the skies when a new planet swims into his ken will be felt by those who see his aeroplane hover over the skyscrapers of New York on its arrival from the Mississippi. Atwood, if he successfully accomplishes the momentous flight, will have set his hand to a date in history as significant in its bearing on international progress as that which witnessed the first transcontinental train en route to the Pacific.

Only less interesting as an event of combined sporting and practical interest is the fast and sure approach of the Paris reporter Jager-Schmidt toward the end of his globe circling journey. From the French capital across Europe, through the intolerable heat and dust of the Siberian steppes, over the Pacific and in to the Canadian Northwest the hardy traveler has pushed on, keeping to the letter of his schedule and latterly gaining on it to an extent that promises the completion of the trip within forty days.

What Jules Verne conceived in his fancy and Nelly Bly accomplished in fact, Jager-Schmidt bids fair to achieve in a time limit that will reduce the best previous record by three weeks. He will have made a remarkable demonstration of man's advance within a few yards in conquering space through the improvement of regular transportation facilities, and the feat will deserve to be compared in its way with Atwood's.—New York World.

Some of our prohibition contemporaries are now hard at work seeking to discredit the local option system. They are aiming a little wide of the mark. The issue in this campaign is not local option but constitutional prohibition—the retention of the amendment, or its repeal and the restoration of the rule of the people over the prohibitory law as over all other laws. That is the actual issue—not the question of prohibition versus local option and license. Meantime, as to local option, there is the strongest kind of evidence that it is a vastly better working system than prohibition. Nearly every state that has fairly tried prohibition has discarded it at last for some form of local option and license, including every state in New England with the single exception of Maine. And in none of these states is there a remote chance of a reversion to prohibition. These are large facts that outweigh tons of anti-local option argument.—Portland, Me., Argus.

RIVER AND HARBOR

On her first visit here since being wrecked on Nantucket in the blizzard of Dec. 16 last, the three masted schooner Thomas B. Garland of this port arrived here Wednesday. After her narrow escape and that of her crew, the Garland was repaired at New Bedford.

Less than half of the granite to be used in the present contract for the navy yard quay wall extension has arrived thus far. More cargoes are to arrive soon.

The pinky schooner Elwood failed in an attempt to beat down river against the tide Tuesday. She was obliged to anchor on the North End wharves and wait for the ebb. Her gasoline engine refused to work at the time.

A TIMELY TOPIC

ORISON SWETT MARDEN
In Success Magazine.

The Capacity For Recreation

Many men of great natural ability go through life doing mediocre work most of the time, because they never learn the secret of re-creating, re-freshing, renewing themselves. There are multitudes of people whose work would improve immensely if they could only learn how to renew, re-create themselves. The sanity and power of all the mental faculties depend upon it. How quickly our courage, enthusiasm, hope, faith, self-confidence, the ability to stick begin to weaken the moment the brain flags. One single hour of intense concentrated effort is worth more than days of trying to force the brain, in second-class condition, to do first-class condition. Thus, we underestimate the tremendous importance of mental freshness and vigor. Good thinking can only come from a clear brain and a clear brain is dependent upon pure blood; and only good food, plenty of sleep, lots of play, good, healthful recreation in the open air, and mental harmony can make fresh blood.

It is force, vigor, robustness, spontaneity, that count in one's creative work. If these qualities are absent, the product must be inferior. No great work can be accomplished by an overworked or fatigued brain. Many people work hard so many hours during the week that they do not have sufficient rest or recreation on Sunday to get rid of the brain ash the broken down tissues, from the week's work. You may be sure that when your head feels thick and dull and you have great difficulty in concentrating your mind, there are enemies of your efficiency in your blood in the way of poisons, worn-out dead cells that you must get rid of. Much of this can be done by thinking, by mental chemistry, if you know how to do it, but nothing will take the place of that refreshment and self-renewal which come from plenty of outdoor exercise, sleep and recreation. Forced recreation, exercise taken for the sake of health, amount to very little. The right mental attitude has everything to do with effecting what is desired.

TOGO NOT COMING

Declines Invitation To Visit New Hampshire

Entertained In Boston Today—Visits The Fleet

Boston, Aug. 16—After an interesting five and one-half hours' journey from New York during which he was more than once obliged to respond to demonstrations, Admiral Count Togo, the Japanese was here, arrived in Boston at 11 o'clock tonight.

At New London the crowds which gathered about the train were especially insistent and not until Admiral Togo who was then at dinner, stepped out on the observation platform and waved his napkin were satisfied.

At Providence there was another demonstration. Dudley M. Holman, secretary to Governor Foss, was at the South station to greet the party upon its arrival. He handed Admiral Togo a letter from the governor expressing his regret that he was not able to greet him personally, and also a letter from Gov. Robert P. Bass of New Hampshire, extending the greetings of that state and inviting the admiral to visit New Hampshire. This invitation Admiral Togo was obliged to decline.

From the station the party was escorted to a hotel and immediately upon arrival Admiral Togo retired for the night, denying himself to interviewers. The day had been an unusually hard one, and although he had been able to secure a few short naps on the train, Admiral Togo felt the need of sleep.

The program for tomorrow includes visits to the state house and city hall, and then a trip on board the torpedo boat destroyer Monaghan to Provincetown, where the ships of the North Atlantic fleet are gathered for maneuvers.

Togo the hero of Japan is here and he was given an excellent idea of New England hospitality. At 10:30 the admiral stepped aboard the Torpedo boat Destroyer Ammen at the Charlestown Navy Yard. At 1 p. m. he was steaming along side battleship Nebraska.

As the America steamed around Wood End light the Nebraska, flagship of Commander in Chief Osterhaus, gave a salute of 17 guns. The ships were in holiday dress and he was received on the deck by four rear admirals connected with the fleet mobilized here, Rear Admiral Osterhaus, Ward Howard and Badger.

As the Ammen steamed around Nebraska. The rear admirals and captains of the various ships gathered about the board with him.

In honor of the Japanese visitor all the ships enjoyed a holiday today. Between now and the departure of the ships Aug. 23 little more in the form of general practice will be done.

GIVEN A GOLD RING.

Young People Surprise Miss Doull on Pine Street.

A surprise party was recently given at the house of Mr. and Mrs. Galloway of Pine street, in honor of Miss Janet Doull of Charlestown.

The merry company had a most enjoyable evening with music and games. Miss Lula Canty, Miss Jason and Miss Rosaline McCooey gave many vocal selections. The most pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation of a gold ring to Miss Doull which made by Ambrose Melnis on behalf of the young people. Refreshments of ice cream, cake, candy and fruit was served. Among those present were: Elizabeth Galloway, Lula Canty, Julia Hartnett, Anna Cronin.

The Post Office Department has Christian charity is worthy of the substituted stamped envelopes of a spirit that reigns further South. Since writing the above we learn that the Universalist Society has also concluded, against the wishes of their pastor, not to assist the loyal souls who have come back to us after risking life and limb in defense of all we hold sacred. In one case it is the shepherd that is wanting in charity and in the other the sheep. In the name of human progress, gentlemen, what is Christianity after you have taken all the Christian spirit out of it.

Clerical Rebellion—We understand that the rector of the Episcopal church in this city has positively refused to allow a collection to be taken up in his congregation for the benefit of the returned sick and wounded of the New Hampshire regiment. BOYS STONING CARS ON PLAINS LOOP

Arthur C. Richardson reported to the police and Superintendent Faggate of the Portsmouth Electric Street Railway today that he had been struck on the head by a rock thrown by boys who stoned the cars on Islington road. The police gathered a half dozen boys who live along the line of the Plains loop and each and everyone denied knowledge of the affair.

In the future it will go hard with boys if they are detected in this work and a sharp watch will be kept along the road to prevent this dangerous practice.

THE PIRATES DEFEAT McDONOUGH STREETS.

The Pirates won their second straight game this morning at the Burnt Lot field by a score of 14 to 4. These teams were to play a series of 3 out of 5 games, the Pirates winning the first by a score of 19 to 0, losing the second by a score of 5 to 4 and winning the third and fourth by scores of 12 to 1 and 14 to 4. The Pirates challenge any 13 year old team with a pitcher not over 14 years of age and would like to hear from the Creaks, South Ends and Christian Shore teams any week day.

The game this morning was fast but one-sided. Davis pitched well for the Pirates, striking out 12 men and allowing but two hits. Welsh and Loughlin pitched well for the McDonough Streets but at times received poor support. The features of the game were the fast play of J. Herlihy at first base and that of Soule and Tryder at 2d and 3d base, and also the catching of Crowley for the Pirates.

L. Thompson played a great game at center field making two fine stops of ground balls and making a fine catch of a fly ball of Lee McDonough Streets. The lineup:

Died, at Hotel Champernowne, Aug. 16, Cecilia A. Senat of Philadelphia aged 84 years. The remains were sent to Philadelphia this morning for services and interment in charge of Undertaker O. W. Ham.

Eliza Leavitt.

Eliza Leavitt, daughter of Daniel and Hannah Perkins Goss, of Rye, 84 years of age, died at Hyde Park on Tuesday. The funeral services were held today at the home of her brother, Daniel J. Goss, on Riverside square, Hyde Park, and the body brought to this city for interment.

Miss Ellen Grace Cox.

Miss Ellen Grace Cox, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cox of Maplewood avenue, died at the Portsmouth Hospital, shortly after 10 o'clock Wednesday evening. Miss Cox had been in poor health for several years past and on Saturday last was taken to the hospital for a surgical operation, in hopes of saving her life. She was a young woman possessed of many friends who will deeply deplore her death. Besides her parents, who have the deepest sympathy of a large circle of friends in their bereavement, she is survived by two brothers.

KITTERY LETTER

Kittery, Aug. 17.

Tag Day, which had been looked forward to by many, was most successful from a financial point of view. This morning the sum of $85 had been received by Miss Lovell, who has done much toward making the day a success, and more will be turned in during the day. The taggers were out bright and early and met with very few refusals. Capt. T. Burton Hoyt offered his automobile and the Misses Ellen Bowden, Doris Sprague and Elizabeth Heulin, with Mrs. M. F. Wentworth, went through Kittery Point, and although many were out of town, it being picnic day, they brought in $12 from that section of the town. This automobile presented a most pleasing sight, trimmed with flags and tags, with the little misses all dressed in white. Mrs. Elroy Cottle and Miss Eleanor Lovell, with Mrs. Cottle's carriage, went through all the streets, in order to catch any who in some way might have been overlooked. Mrs. George Fretthen, with Masters Phillip and Myron Woods and Jesse Philbrick and Miss May Moody canvassed from Locke's Cove to the bridge and brought in $7, many in this vicinity being away for the day. Miss May Rogers, with the Misses Marion and Minnie Morrow, Josephine Waite, Edna Kimball and Carrie Morrow, took the Rogers' road bright and early and returned $16.50. Others who went about town were Howard Paul, Charles and Jack Edwards, Adelbert Webber, Norman Dugbar, George Dixon, Roger Emery and Mildred Gerry. Clarence Moody was at the Badger's Island waiting station. Many others helped in various ways. In all ways everything went off in fine manner and the Village Improvement Society is to be congratulated on its successful Tag Day. The funds will be kept open and all who feel disposed can add to it, the money can be left at the library building and will be most thankfully received.

Miss Fannie Hathaway of Portsmouth is the guest of Miss Mary C. Brooks of Government street for a few days.

Mrs. William Taylor and daughter, Pauline passed Wednesday with her mother, Mrs. John Paul of Cottle's hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ball of Otis avenue have arrived home from a ten days trip to Conway and North Conway, where they had a most enjoyable visit. They left today for a visit to Salem Depot, where they will visit for a few days with relatives.

Many words of appreciation are expressed to Capt. T. Burton Hoyt of Kittery Point who offered the use of his automobile on Tag Day, giving up his work for the Village Improvement society's benefit. He went through Kittery Point and Kittery proper, and with his taggers brought in over $20.

Mrs. M. F. Wentworth and Miss Elizabeth Heulin of Wentworth street left today for a visit in Rockport, Mass.

Owing to a misunderstanding in the committee the picnic of Riverside Lodge, No. 72, I. O. O. F., will be held on Aug. 26, instead of August 19. The same program as planned for Saturday next will be carried out on the later date. It is expected that the three lodges in the district will combine and make Saturday, Aug. 26, a big field day. Take notice of the change in dates.

The 28th annual reunion of the 27th Maine Regiment Association will be held at Berwick, Me., on Aug. 26. All comrades are earnestly requested to be present with their families and friends. There will be speaking and music for the entertainment of the comrades. A free dinner will be served to all.

James Brown of the Intervene is in Boston on a short visit.

At the funeral of William A. Dennett on Tuesday afternoon, Rev. E. H. Macy of Laconia was in charge of the services and sang two solos. Miss A. Lillian Walker read a poem by Father Ryan called "A Thought" and Rev. Sylvester Burnham, professor of theology at Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y., offered prayer. Mr. Macy read a poem, "The Better Land." For remarks he contrasted the unsuccessful life of the Rich Young Ruler of the Bible and the successful life of William A. Dennett.

George D. Boulter was a recent visitor in Boston.

Prof. and Mrs. Sylvester Burnham have conceded their vacation at Kittery Point and left for their home in Hamilton, N. Y., today.

Mrs. John Danmore, who is at the state hospital at Augusta, sent to Miss Eleanor Lovell eight yards of handsome hand knit lace, to be sold and the proceeds to be given for the benefit of the Kittery Village Improvement Society.

Warren Leighton of Portland passed Wednesday in town. A regular meeting of the Grange will be held this evening at Grange hall.

The big fair of the North Kittery Methodist church opened last evening with great success. Many from here attended. It will finish this evening.

Leroy Edwards of Dorchester, Mass., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Sweet of Love Lane. A dance will be held at Wentworth hall this evening.

On Saturday next on the Portsmouth playgrounds the Riversides of this town will play an All Star team from the Sunset League, the proceeds of the game to be used as a benefit for William Fields and Walter Fisher, the players who were injured in last Saturday's game.

TWO FORTUNES

Both Came Suddenly to the Same Person and One Was Many Millions

By DAVID WALTER CHURCH

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Why should we read fairy stories with marvelous happenings when there are such occurring in real life? The imagination is not capable of creating the possibilities that occasionally occur among persons who are made of flesh and blood and have souls. What imagination a century ago in a long striping Illinoisian could detect the leader of the greatest political crisis the world has ever known? And in the acquisition of wealth, what more wonderful development in fancy than the story of a real Mexican peon who came into an income of $10,000,000 a year?

In a town, of northern Mexico, in an adobe house lived an old man, Pedro Alvarado by name, a peon, who, with his Indian wife, worked and saved till he had accumulated $100. With this money the couple bought a piece of land on the top of a rocky hill near by the town in which they lived.

Why they put their hard earned savings in this barren and not very accessible summit and continued to save and to pay $40 a year taxes on it when they needed the very necessities of life is not known. It is possible that the wife, having been an Indian, had heard a tradition handed down from her forefathers that there was a treasure buried there.

Be this as it may, there must have been some reason for the old couple putting all their money in a barren rock, and this view is borne out by the fact that old Alvarado, having willed his purchase to his son and three nephews, called upon the former to swear that he would never part with his interest in it. When we remember that this legacy bequeathed to young Pedro was supposed to be worth but $25 we cannot but assume that his father must have had an inkling that its value was much greater.

After the old couple died the summit of the barren rock was not divided among the heirs, but kept as one property. Then came men who believed that there might be silver under the rock. They had plenty of money and were ready to risk it in an investigation. They offered the heirs a large sum for the property, and Pedro's cousins were willing and anxious to sell. But Pedro, true to his oath, refused to part with his share. In vain the others begged him not to stand in the way of taking advantage of the offer. Pedro stood firm. But after awhile a friend loaned him the money to buy out his cousins' interest and make the investigation as to what the property contained.

One day men began to work on the top of the hill with pick and shovel. A month passed and nothing but ordinary earth and rock was displaced. The cousins came to see and jeered at Pedro for a fool. But Pedro had been loaned sufficient money to pursue his investigations to the end and worked on. Another month passed and yet another with the same result. Then one day in a twinkling all was changed. A vein was struck indicating that the Palmita mine, as it was called, was the richest silver mine that had ever been opened.

And now this story takes on a wonderful change. Pedro Alvarado, son of a Mexican peon father and an Indian mother, heir to a beggarly estate supposed to be worth but $25, suddenly springs into an income of $30,000 a day. The fairy waves her wand and the adobe hut in which Pedro was born is changed into a sumptuous palace furnished from the manufacturers of the old world. Money without limit is given away, thrown away. Whatever the silver king fancies he buys. Those in his employ are loaded with luxuries.

It seems to be the desire of all men to live in a palace, for all men who acquire immense fortunes build such structures to live in. Nevertheless their shades are typical of their origin. Pedro built his palace, and when he got it finished and furnished it was wonderful to behold, especially in the latter respect. The furniture all came from abroad. The most costly bedsteads, chairs and cabinets were shipped from Paris; rugs came from the Orient, and Pedro, instead of walking on the wooden floor—or, more likely, the dirt floor—to which he had been accustomed, sank in the soft substances manufactured by Persian workmen.

But the most curious freak of this suddenly enriched man was a mania for pianos. His palace was filled with them. They, too, came from those factories where the most skilled workmen were employed in their building, and their mechanism was encased in the most costly woods, often beautifully inlaid. They were in his parlors, in his living rooms, bedrooms—anywhere, everywhere where there was room for them, and room in Pedro's palace was abundant.

Strangely enough but one selfish motive guided this suddenly enriched man. The rest are all altruistic. He is besieged by persons eager to buy his mine, or if they cannot do that at least a part of it. By selling and permitting educated business men to work it the income could be greatly increased. But no argument, no amount of enjoying, could move the man who had sworn he would not sell.

Then it was represented to him that by certain simple business reforms he might himself make his mine pay more largely. All the ore taken from it was carried down the hill on mules. Why not build a little railroad for the purpose, which could be operated at much less expense? "But what would those do who now make their living by driving the mules?" asked Pedro. The simple business scheme is refused. Wastefulness continues. The owner's employees draw immense salaries, and how much they steal besides does not appear, except in the opulent manner in which they live.

Will the mine always stand this waste, this drain? Will there not come a day when the vein will run out? And then? Well, then the silver king and those who are sucking his wealth will collapse.

Among them all there is one who foresees such a result. Pedro's wife had dredged as a peon until the mine was opened. She remembered that part of her life and had no desire to return to it. Why not from this river of wealth on which they were floating turn aside something to support them to ease the fountain should dry up?

And so she did. Instead of putting away a few copper coins at a time as her father-in-law had done with which to buy his rock, she took $1,000 bills and hid them. For years she stored away these bills. No one knew that they were being hidden, no one knew their hiding place. The waste, the extravagance, the money sucking by employees, relations, dependents continued, but every now and again the former peon woman hid away a thousand dollar bill.

True enough, what Senora Alvarado foresaw at last came about. The earth taken out of the mine became less rich. Instead of producing $30,000 a day it produced but a few hundred dollars to the ton. All it was worth must be paid to those who carried it from the mine into the valley and for getting the silver out of it. Pedro had seen his fortune loom up almost in a night; now he saw it sinking rapidly away. Then to crown his loss water appeared in his mine.

Water is the great danger, the great trouble when it comes, in mining. Tunnels must be built, expensive pumps must be put in, either one or both. Pedro had but one business idea in his head. That was to hold on to his property. But now even that idea had ceased to be practicable. His mine was no longer valuable unless worked on business principles, and Pedro was not a business man.

Since there had been nothing put away, so there was nothing when the end came. The man who had given away and wasted millions now found himself unable to give or waste any longer. It was the old story of the fairy who had raised palaces and other luxuries for the pauper, by muttering another incantation caused them to vanish.

Then Senora Alvarado, who had been tucking away thousand dollar bills very conveniently, died. In distributing her effects a maid who had been a long while in her service was asked if there was anything that had belonged to her mistress she would like to have. She said there was an old quilt the seniors had always used which it would gratify her to possess. The beloved woman had slept under it for many years and would never let it go out of her own keeping. Surely this would be a treasured souvenir.

But Pedro remonstrated against the faithful servant having nothing but an old quilt much worn and not over clean. He urged the maid to name something of greater value. She, however, clung to the quilt and would not be comforted without this article so intimately associated with her mistress.

Now, Pedro was aware that his wife had not sympathized with him in his extravagance; indeed, she had repeatedly warned him that he would come to grief by it. Knowing this he wondered if the good woman had not put something away for a rainy day. The eagerness of the maid to possess the quilt caused him to suspect that something might be hidden in it. Instead of giving it he began to rip it. Out came a thousand dollar bill. Ripping on he found another, and so, as Pedro had grown fabulously rich overnight in finding silver under a rock, he now gained a fortune in an old quilt. He took out 800 thousand dollar bills—quite enough to soothe him for the running out of his mine and to enable him to live handsomely for the rest of his days.

Pedro Alvarado yielding to the inevitable turned over his mine to others. Some Americans are the new owners and are working it on modern principles. Meanwhile the owner lives on the income of the 800 one-thousand-dollar bills that were successfully saved up by his more farseeing wife in the old quilt through a long term of years.

There is an unexplained feature in this story that, appealing as it does to the curiosity, is the most important part of it. Why did the señor Alvarado put all the little money he had in the rock that covered the mine, and why did he pledge his son under oath not to sell it? The only possible solution seems to be that some Spaniard years ago prospected in the region and from the trend of veins of silver found suspected that the top of the hill in question contained the same metal. This may have been known to the Indians and been handed down from one generation to another. That the hill contained the immense treasure that Pedro junior discovered no one could have known. This must of necessity be one of the remarkable freaks of fate.

"OVERNIGHT."

The Shubert Theatre opened its season a fortnight ago with a success. There was no doubt of this, for from the moment the curtain rose on the first act of "Over Night" the audience became wildly appreciative and laughed incessantly clear to the finale.

"Over Night," the famous New York success, is a tumultuous rip-roaring comedy, brim full of bright, sparkling lines and situations. Coming to Boston in mid-summer, at the height of the "silly season," it is particularly welcome. "Over Night" is about for fun of the purest, lightest, and most laughable description. And how the people have turned out to see it. On the first night the Shubert Theatre held an audience that

bert Theatre held an audience that filled every seat and all the boxes, and put standing room at a premium. So it has been ever since, even at the Wednesday and Saturday matinees. "Over Night" tells the story of two married couples on their honeymoon who meet by chance on a Hudson River steamboat, who by some misadventure become separated, the bride of one being carried off on the steamer with the husband of the other woman. This is the whole plot of the play, but the author manages to make out of it an exceedingly funny and interesting series of complications. It is in three acts, all extremely funny, and each one brim full of action and fairly bristling with laugh provoking situations. There is not a dull moment in the play, nor is there the slightest bit of coarseness or horse play. There is wit, humor, sentiment and pathos in the dialogue and situations, but it is principally humor, as, for example, where the groom is left on the Hudson River steamboat with the other man's bride, and says to her, "All my friends are getting married. I'll be the only one left unless some girl takes pity on me." Then she looks at him appealingly and retorts, "Quick as a flash; 'Sorts of a remnant Well, it will increase your chances for you will go on a bargain counter and all women love bargains." This is but one of the innumerable funny tion of the French comedy as spicy as its title. It was a timely choice, and Boston approved it by packing the theatre to the doors. The play was an instant success, and kept the great audience alternately bubbling with mirth as the situations developed and screeching uncontrollably at the climax came. It is irresistible and people sit chuckling for minutes at a time until they can no longer hold in the laughs, and there is a whole evening of it.

Even the conservative Transcript is equally loud in its praises of "Over Night," for it says: "To all the records that have been broken this summer must be added that of this early August opening; and the phenomenal attendance. A livelier comedy full of clean fun and real humor it is hard to recall. While it is doubtful if any of the actors are to be found in the theatrical 'Who's Who,' it would be difficult to imagine a better traped company or one whose individual members could any better work in this particular play. The action involved is exceedingly funny, and is the kind of fun that one laughs at unblushingly. The selection of the cast shows skill and good judgment and all are praiseworthy. The piece went like clockwork, and every speech went over the footlights. In stage parlance, value of the 'team work' was plainly and convincingly demonstrated."

VIOLATION OF LICENSE LAW

A complaint has been filed with the state board of license commissioners against Joseph T. Piper, who exercises a first class license at the Monahan house in Colebrook, N. H., alleging the sale of intoxicating liquor to a minor and also to an intoxicated person. The hearing in this case will be held at the office of the commissioners in Concord on Friday next.

If you haven't the time to exercise regularly, Doan's Regulents will prevent constipation. They induce a mild, easy, healthful action of the bowels without griping. Ask your druggist for them. 25 cents.

NAPOLEON'S TAILOR.

One Man Who Dared to Disobey His Imperial Master.

The diary of l'oumies de la Siboutie (born 1789, died 1883), recently translated into English, has something about Napoleon, that remarkable man who continues to be the most interesting figure in European history. He is one about Napoleon's carelessness in dress and what came of it.

In 1810, when Napoleon went to Compiègne to receive Marie Louise, his sister, the Princess Borghese said to him: "Your clothes are badly cut and do not fit you. You are so obstinate about not wearing braces—your trousers always look as if they were falling off."

"Well," answered the emperor, "what do you advise me to do about it? Can you recommend another tailor?"

"Have a talk with Constant."

Constant, the emperor's valet, was sent for and named one Leger, who was tailor to Munt, Prince Eugene, Joseph and Jerome Bonaparte. A messenger was sent to summon him, and he arrived at Compiègne the next day. From that moment he made everything Napoleon wore. He consistently ignored his imperial patron's suggestions concerning his clothes. For instance, the emperor wished the skirts of his tunics to be turned back, like those of Frederick the Great. "I should not think of allowing such a thing, sire! You would look absurd, and my reputation would be lost. The eyes of the whole world are upon your majesty, and if you were seen wearing such a uniform as you propose it would be a disadvantage to you, and I should have to bear the blame. I would not make you such a tunic if you offered me the whole of your empire."

ESKIMO SEALERS.

A Battle of Alertness Between the Hunter and His Prey.

The Eskimo method of hunting seals shows a primitive calling improved to a fine art. When a seal is discovered the direction of the wind is at once noted. Then the hunter, keeping himself to the leeward of the seal, walks up to within about a quarter of a mile of it. Beyond this he begins to crouch and advances only when the seal's head is down.

Now, as the seal is one of the most wide awake of animals and has the habit of throwing up its head quickly every few seconds to guard against danger, it follows that the Eskimo has to be extremely alert if he would get his seal. When the seal's head is down upon the ice its eyes are shut, and it is said that in these brief intervals it takes its sleep.

The hunter by carefully watching the seal's movements is able without much difficulty to get within about 200 yards of it, but at closer quarters he is obliged to employ other tactics. He lies down at full length on the ice. Then the real sport begins.

When the seal's head is down the hunter, who keeps a keen eye on his prey, is able to approach still nearer by dragging himself forward on his elbows. This maneuvering continues for some time until the distance between man and beast has been reduced to a few yards.

When near enough to make a sure shot the Eskimo takes his bow and arrow from his side and sends a swift shaft through the head of his outwitted companion. Sometimes instead of the bow and arrow a harpoon is used with equal effect.—Harper's Weekly.

THE PARENTS' JOKE.

Some parents seem unable to resist the temptation to make a joke with the Christian names of their children, says the London Chronicle. The Somerset House registers testify to the existence of a Mr. Mineral Waters, a Frost, Winter and an Alfred Days Weeks. There is something to be said in favor of naming children in the order of their arrival—Primus, Secundus, etc.—but it is unfortunate for a well known Canadian named Cumber that I should have fallen to his lot to be Quintus, for his name is always appearing in the papers as Mr. Q. Cumber.

A BOSTON STREET.

It was one of the older conductors breaking in a new recruit who had shown that he was not particularly quick to catch an idea. The car came to Webster street, and the older conductor whispered the name to the recruit. The latter did not understand and the conductor, losing patience said, "Webster—Webster's dictionary." And the passengers were amazed to hear the new man bawl out, "Webster's dictionary."—Boston Post.

Yearned For Excitement.

"Yes, the great society leader is absolutely enured."

"Tired of everything, eh?"

"Positive. The last time I saw her she was faintly wondering in a bewildered way whether she'd better take up aviation or get a divorce."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PUBLICITY BILL UP TO PRESIDENT

Washington, Aug. 16.—The senate agreed today to the conference report on the campaign publicity bill, and it now goes to the president for signature.

It includes a provision that no senator shall spend more than $10,000 nor any representative more than $5000 in securing his election.

Adjournment of the special session of congress next Sunday night is possible, according to a statement made today by Senator Penrose, after a conference with the president.

"By carrying the legislative day of Saturday over until Sunday we should be able to get away by Sunday night," said the senator.

To determine whether a compromise can be effected between the two houses of congress to provide statehood for Arizona and New Mexico, the house territories committee today to confer with the senate committee.

The senate committee deferred consideration of statehood legislation until tomorrow.

By the actions of the two boys, Russell and Samuel Fox, while here it is a wonder that they reached Kennebunk and the best thing for this pair of youthful hikers to do is to hunt up a job and go to work.

Later, it was announced, a new start would be made, perhaps from Boston, on a cross continent hike by a first class boy scout. Plans for this are now under way and will be given out when completed.

FEEL AMONG THIEVES.

And the Old Man Didn't Know Which Set Was the Worst.

An old man from rural England with his wife was on a holiday in London and decided on an evening at a theater. He looked up the advertisements in the papers and selected a house where "All Haba and the Forty Thieves" was being played. It was a "cheap" house, the price of stalls being given as two-and-sixpence. The farmer was surprised, however, on arriving at the box office to be met with a demand for 6 shillings for the two tickets. The extra sixpence per seat, it was explained, was for booking. Then he was called upon to pay sixpence for a program, and the female attendant who showed him to the seats also asked for sixpence. In addition to which there was a shilling to be paid for hats and coats being taken care of in spite of his protest that they could take care of them themselves. A footstool was brought for his wife and was accepted without suspicion that it would be charged for, but the attendant who brought it demanded another sixpence, and finally opera glasses were handed to them and payment of another sixpence requested. Then the farmer went in search of the manager and, finding him, said in a tone of deepest disgust: "You may do what you like with these tickets. There are so many thieves in front of the house that we don't think we want to see the forty on the stage!"—London Answers.

THUNDERSTORMS.

They Kill Over 300 Persons a Year in Madagascar.

Thunderstorms never occur in the Arctic regions, and even the north of Scotland very seldom suffers from such a visitation. The nearer you get to the equator the more frequent and severe are the electric manifestations. In parts of Central Africa the average of thunderous days rises to the astonishing total of 250 per annum.

Yet there are curious exceptions. In Java and Sumatra, both intensely hot climates, there are but ninety-two storms yearly, and in Borneo only fifty.

The Gold coast of Africa has only sixty a year, which is less than occur in Florida, though the latter country is outside the tropics.

In Jamaica there is a thunderstorm every day during the rainy season, which lasts for five months. These storms almost always occur between midday and 3 in the afternoon.

Perhaps the most astonishing fact with regard to thunderstorms is that the island of Mauritius, which is only 550 miles east of Madagascar, has, on an average, only one thunderstorm in eighty years. Yet in Madagascar the lightning is more destructive than anywhere else in the world, the annual death toll being over 300.—Pearson's Weekly.

PRECIOUS DOCUMENTS.

Care of the Constitution and Declaration of Independence.

Open to the light of day for the first time in nine years, the Declaration of Independence and the constitution of the United States were recently inspected by Secretary of State Knox and found to be in as good condition as when they were put away in their hiding place, a steel safe especially designed for their custody.

The four pages of the constitution and the pages containing the resolution submitting the constitution to the states of the Union are in excellent condition. The ink is as black as when fresh laid to the parchment with a quill pen and is of a quality that will outlast any ink of modern make.

The Declaration of Independence, with hardly a signature legible of all those which are appended to it by the great men of the infant republic, however, is otherwise losing nothing of legibility. Its condition is due to the fact that away back in 1832, when there were no other means known of getting a facsimile, a press copy was taken which absorbed the ink from nearly all the signatures and left the script of the body of the document still readable, but more faint by half than it had been before.

The declaration had also been exposed to strong sunlight while on exhibition at Philadelphia in 1876 and at the Chicago exposition in 1893.

The documents are kept in a light steel case that would offer only slight resistance to heat and fire. Each page is hermetically sealed between two panes of glass, which are then bound in wooden frames of highly polished oak.

Secretary Knox directed that Chief Clerk McNeil make estimate for a safe depository for the documents that should be fire proof, water proof, air proof and light proof. The two valuable documents were then closed up again in the safe and the seal affixed, to be opened again only for transfer to a stronger place of keeping.

The documents will not be open to public inspection. The safe is kept in the library of the state department.—Washington Star.

ENTOMBED IN A GLACIER.

A Reminder of the Fearful Alpine Tragedy of 1870.

A broken alpenstock bearing the carved name "Dr. J. Benn, Chamoni," has, the London Chronicle says, just been found by a Chamonix guide in the ice of the Glacier des Bossons, which "flows" down direct from the summit of Mont Blanc to the valley of Chamoni. The find recalls the most terrible accident in Alpine history, when eleven climbers perished on the summit of the Great White mountain in violent snowstorms which lasted a week. In September, 1870, the Rev. G. McCorkindale of Glasgow and two Americans, Dr. J. Benn of Baltimore and Mr. Randall, both elderly men with little experience of the Alps, set out from Chamoni with eight guides and safely reached the summit in doubtful weather. Hardly had the descent commenced when the snowstorm started, and not one of the eleven climbers was seen again alive. A strong force of guides some days later found the bodies of five victims, including the clergyman and Dr. Benn, but the other six were never found, having most probably fallen into crevasses. It is now thought, owing to the discovery of the broken alpenstock, that the bodies of the six climbers, who have been buried in their tomb of ice for the last forty-one years, have reached the end of the glacier, which travels at the rate of about 500 feet a year, and are not far from the surface of the ice at the lip of the Chamoni valley.—St. James' Gazette.

Modern Mutiny.

The man accused of inciting mutiny on the ship was heavily ironed and brought before the captain. "Was he caught in the act?" asked the captain when he had glared menacingly at the culprit.

"Yes, sir," replied the first mate. "I caught him in the act of taking up cards bearing the mutinous expression, 'Back to the Land.'"—Chicago News.

Monkey Bread.

African baboons (also called monkey bread, sour gourd and lala plants) were computed by Adanson, noted traveler, to have endured for 5,730 years. Natives use the hollowed out trunks of these enormous trees as places of deposit for executed criminals whom the law denies the rights of burial.

A Glum Prospect.

"We who ride in trolley cars today may ride in automobiles tomorrow," said the optimist.

"And in hearse the following day," said the pessimist.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Rise a Little Higher.

Those who live on the mountains have a longer day than those who live in the valley. Sometimes all we need to brighten our day is to rise a little higher.

Good Scheme.

"How do Jack and Jeanne ever manage to scrape a living?"

"Why, he makes the money first and she makes it last."

REAL SECRET OF FLIGHT.

Aeroplane May Have to Be Fitted With Movable Wings.

Two German physicists, doing some experimenting for the Smithsonian Institution, tell us that we are as yet off the line of the real secret of flight, says the Century Path. Fixed wings are a provisional makeshift and must, one would say, inevitably involve the death of every aviator who trusts himself to them for a sufficient number of flights. He must some time come to a place in the air where an upward and downward current are passing each other. If, as is sometimes certain, he has one wing in one of these and the other in the other his death is assured.

There must be a positive lifting power in the wings if safety is to be secured in this kind of flight. The wings must beat like those of an insect or a bird—the former, Drs. von Lendenfeld and Ritter say. And, we should say, there must be an automatically acting arrangement by which either wing can when necessary deliver a more powerful stroke or more rapid strokes than the other.

They studied the blowfly in particular, finding its wings to be a double membrane between whose layers is a supporting system of hollow tubes radiating from the joint and connected with cross plates. The movement is directly downward and toward the end of the stroke a little forward. The upstroke, which is slower, is a little backward, making the front half of the lower loop of a figure 8 and then the hinder half of the upper loop. In this the wing becomes a little vertical so as to oppose its back to an air current on which the insect is flying.

BROKEN RAILS.

Many Causes For These Promoters of Railroad Wrecks.

Among all the causes of railroad accidents in the United States none is mentioned with greater frequency than the broken rail.

Many causes are assigned, and, doubtless, many are contributory. An excess of phosphorus not easily eliminated by the Bessemer process by which nearly all American rails are made has been most commonly blamed, but some of the best mechanical engineers now regard this cause as unimportant. Improper shape and a lack of pressure in rolling modern heavy rails proportionate to that which was available for the lighter rails of the past are more important faults. An excess of carbon is another.

Faults of shape usually consist in undue thinness of the web or slant of the rail and thinness of the base. The disproportion between these parts and the head of the rail tends to a lack of uniformity in texture after cooling.

Most important of all causes of broken rails is the strain imposed by the great weight and high speed of modern trains. Mechanical engineers believe that with the present style of rail the limit of safety is reached at an axle load of 45,000 pounds, yet many trains considerably exceed that figure.

Two or three years ago steps were taken by various associations to have adopted specifications for a standard rail heavier in the web and the base than those in use; and these specifications were approved by leading engineers.—Harper's Weekly.

English In Austria's Army.

A letter from Budapest in a Vienna paper says that "another language has been added to the many already in use in the Austrian army. This one, however, is one which the man in search of linguistic data would not look for." English! He writes further that the rank and file of the Sixty-sixth regiment of infantry, stationed at Karschau, have voted in favor of English as the language to be employed in the regimental schools. The reason for this is found in the fact that the regiment is made up of recruits from the Karschau district. From there men and women in great numbers went to America. Many of them and their descendants returned to the old home, bringing the English language with them. Consequently the children employ English as much as they do their native tongue.

A Savings Bank Library.

The following scheme is about to be set on foot in Brussels for the diffusion of enlightening literature. A central library consisting of the output of 10,000 choice volumes is to be created there, and any inhabitant of any part of Belgium entitled a savings bank book will be entitled to borrow from it and receive by post any book for a period of a fortnight on checking a penny off his savings bank book at the postoffice, his money at the bank serving as a guarantee for payment for books not returned. As there are about 1,500 postoffices in Belgium, this will amount to the creation of a circulating library with 1,500 branches, whose risks will be more than covered by the deposits in the savings banks.—London Standard.

Noble German Actors.

Who shall say that the stage still suffers under a social disadvantage when we learn that fifty German noblemen are now appearing as actors and that six members of reigning families have taken their wives from behind the footlights? Among the aristocratic players are Baron Emil von Kleydoff, Baron von Wagonheim, Count von Lerchenstein and a son of Prince Sayn-Wittgenstein. It is not necessarily but historic ambition that governs these people. Presumably they can act, and at least some of them can act well and are popular.—Argonaut.

POLICE COURT
In police court before Judge Simons on Tuesday afternoon the following cases were disposed of.
John Dwyer charged with larceny brought in $200 bonds for the upper court.
Charles Tag, drunk, sentenced to six months.
Jake Mason, drunkenness, given a suspended sentence. John M. B. drunkenness sentenced to six months.

and when placed under arrest was indignant.
While Joseph's name may be appropriate for the locality in which he resides the residents there would like to know where and how he entered Riley without a word of the good English language at his command.

WANTED IN NEWBURYPORT

Thief Thought To Be In This City.

William Johnson of Newburyport, Mass., came to this city today in search of Max Bloch, 25 years old, for whom the police of Newburyport have a warrant charging him with larceny of money and goods from employees of Johnson. Bloch has been in this city. A rain coat, alleged to have been stolen from one of the employees, was "put up" in James F. Slaughter's pawnshop by a young man answering Bloch's description, and two razors were found in the pawnshop of Morris Silverman on Daniel street. The man got about $1 for the three articles.
It is said to have asked for sufficient money to go to Portland, Me.
Johnson employs a number of land soliciting subscriptions for engaging young men who go about New England soliciting subscriptions for engaging photographs. Bloch was employed by him. Bloch disappeared from a tenement that the employees occupy in Newburyport, and a dress suit case, two razors, a raincoat, a small amount of money and clothing were found to be missing. Johnson returned to Newbury-port in the afternoon.

Last night the battleships were attacked by a hostile fleet made up of the destroyers and submarines, and reports today are that they suffered serious loss in ships and men.
Rear Admiral Sidney A. Stanton of the armored cruiser Washington, who received orders about 10 days ago detaching him from the ship, went to Boston today on the destroyer Monaghan. He will report at Newport for shore duty.
It is stated that the use of airships promised by official reports from Washington has been reserved until the fleet engages in its fall target practice off the coast of Virginia next month.

BORED HOLE IN BOTTOM OF STONES BOAT

This morning John P. Sore a musician in the Marine band who also conducts a small ferry on the river found his craft at the bottom of the river where he makes his landing at the foot of Daniel street.
An examination proved that during the night somebody was kind enough to bore a hole in her bottom and she quickly filled and sank at her mooring. The owner has many times before suffered in one way and another from his craft and he has on several occasions picked up the boat on the other end of the river after having been stolen and set adrift.

ANOTHER BREAK AT ROSEMARY CAR STATION

The waiting room and luner room of the Atlantic Shore Railway at Rosemary Junction had another call from thieves on Tuesday night. They gained entrance through a rear window and after clearing the place of many things amount to $2 and $25 worth of cigars set down and devoured all the food in the place. Before leaving they smashed the telephone in pieces putting the line out of commission. The proprietor, W. C. Wylie has no clue to the thieves. The place has many times entered and Mr. Wylie has suffered much in the loss of his stock.

NONE BETTER

Nichols' Ice Cream is Above the Required Standard
The following letter attests to the purity of Nichols' celebrated ice cream and sustains his claim that there is none better:
Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 15, 1911
Mr. Peter Nichols,
Portsmouth, N. H.
Dear Sir:—In the recent analysis
Ice Cream from this city, the state chemists reports your cream to be pure, and to contain 18.5 per cent better fat, or 4.5 per cent above standard.

Respectfully Yours,
C. E. JOHNSTON, M. D.,
Chairman of Board of Health

PEOPLE'S OPINIONS

Editor Herald:—
What is our Board of Trade going to do in the matter of inviting Admiral Togo to this city while he is touring America. True that the he has declined the governors invitation to visit the mountains, but that does not indicate that he would not take a look at the interior of the Peace Building where the cruel war was ended between his country and Russia.

BORN AT ISLES OF SHOALS
Birthplace Of Sir William Pepperell In Dispute

Throwing down the gauntlet to so-called historians, Moses A. Safford of Kittery, the speaker at the annual meeting of the Piscataqua Pioneers yesterday, offered to submit evidence that Sir William Pepperell, the hero of Louisburg, was not born at Kittery Point, but at the Isles of Shoals.
Charles A. Hazlett of this city, Dr. J.
L. M. Willis of Elliot, Me., and other eminent members of the Pioneers agreed to submit corroborative evidence.

Mr. Safford said that birth records have been discovered to conclusively prove that Pepperell was born and reared at the Shoals. In fact, on New Hampshire soil. Brewster's Rambles about Portsmouth are also quoted as lived at the Shoals at the time of the boy's birth. His birth place was formerly recognized in the Pepperell mansion at Kittery Point, Me., later occupied by the Pepperells.

Emerson Piano Quality.
Quality in a Piano is absolutely essential, for a poor quality Piano is not a Piano at all. It may be a "furniture piano" if you will, but it is not a musical one —and what is the good of a Piano if it is no musical?
The Emerson Piano seems to grow better everyday. The makers of this instrument have lately surpassed themselves. The Pianos that are now coming to us are simply magnificent. The touch, the tone, and the finish are better than ever before.
The more difficult you are to please, the better we shall like it, for you cannot but be pleased with these instruments, yet with all their goodness they are sold for a fair price on easy terms.
